

Contents

Editorial	3
Special Issue: Arctic Environmental Governance
Black carbon and the Arctic: Global problem-solving through the nexus of science, law and space Sabaa Ahmad Khan and Kati Kulovesi	5
Relationships with Arctic indigenous peoples: To what extent has prior informed consent become a norm? Layla Hughes	15
Dumping and oil pollution: Regulatory approaches for vessel operations in an ice-free Central Arctic Ocean Stefan Kirchner and Pirjo Kleemola-Juntunen	28
Russia and the polar marine environment: The negotiation of the environmental protection measures of the mandatory Polar Code Dorottya Bognar	35
Arctic climate governance via EU law on black carbon? Seita Romppanen	45
Will China build a green Belt and Road in the Arctic? Nengye Liu	55
A rights-based approach to indigenous women and gender inequities in resource development in northern Canada Konstantia Koutouki, Katherine Lofts and Giselle Davidian	63
Regular Article
The EU's conditioning of the 'extraterritorial' carbon footprint: A call for an integrated approach in trade law discourse Natalie L. Dobson	75
Case Note
The South China Sea arbitration: Environmental obligations under the Law of the Sea Convention Yoshifumi Tanaka	90
Book Reviews
Louis J. Kotzé, Global Environmental Constitutionalism in the Anthropocene (Rosemary Mwanza)	97
George Duke and Robert P. George, The Cambridge Companion to Natural Law Jurisprudence (Nikolas Sellheim)	99