

Asia Pacific Journal of Environmental Law

Volume 22, Issue 1, 2019

Contents

Editorial

- Forests, corruption, environmental degradation, protection of species and cooperation in the Asia Pacific region 1
Ed Couzens and Tim Stephens

Articles

- Complying with Australia's illegal logging laws: tough reality after a soft start? Lessons from the United States and the European Union 7
Beatriz Garcia and Jonathan Verschuuren
- Forest certification, state regulation and community empowerment:
complementarity in seeking a viable solution to forest degradation in Indonesia? 27
Shawkat Alam, Tuti Herawati, Herman Hidayat and Stephen Wyatt
- Corruption and the forestry industry in Papua New Guinea:
transnational actors, local dynamics and environmental impact 48
Hannah Harris
- Corporations, human rights and the environmental degradation–corruption nexus 66
Wim Huisman and Daniel Sidoli
- Green banking frameworks in Asia with an in-depth focus on Bangladesh and China 93
Sherin Kunhibava, Sarah Tan Yen Ling, Nur Faizira Abdul Rahman and Md Khalil Ruslan
- Listening to nature's voice: invasive species, Earth jurisprudence and compassionate conservation 117
Sophie Riley
- Bilateral agreements for the protection of migratory birdlife:
the implementation of the China-Australia Migratory Bird
Agreement (CAMBA) 137
Evan Hamman

Regional cooperation for protection of the marine environment in Southeast Asia: current trends in the South China Sea Amber Rose Maggio	160
--	-----

Book Reviews

Benoit Mayer, The International Law on Climate Change (Cambridge University Press, 2018) 302 pp. Reviewed by Michael Addaney	171
Gabriel Eckstein, The International Law of Transboundary Groundwater Resources (Earthscan/Routledge, 2017) 187 pp. Reviewed by Gayathri Naik	176